“When I go back to Sacramento, I still love playing my trumpet to the countryside (not always to the content of my neighbors). My parents currently live near Elk Grove and my sister lives in Folsom. While I am home I like to play golf with my dad, mostly at Cordova Golf Course, check out my mom’s garden and worm farm, and see my sister’s cute cats. Sacramento will always have a special place in my heart. When people ask me where my home is, I always am proud to say, ‘I grew up in Sacramento.’”

Because Once a Month Our Civic Pulse Quickens

Second Saturday may only happen one night a month, but it’s the best one. Suddenly, the city is a canvas, and it bursts alive like a David Garibaldi painting—unpredictable, vibrant and dripping with paint that gets on our shoes. Or maybe it’s a Mondrian, with blocks of color popping off the black and white grid of midtown. Or perhaps it’s an art house film, flickering with light and motion and with musicians on sidewalks providing an eclectic, bohemian soundtrack. Whatever it is, it’s a brief, fleeting glimpse into what it’s like for our city to live to its fullest potential. And we love it so.

“One of my favorite places in Sacramento is the Crest Theatre. It’s sort of like being wrapped in elegant red, green and gold. When you walk in, with the details and the molding, you feel like you’re walking into history. I think it’s sexy.”
